Skip to Sentence Type Worksheet When contemplating a sentence type, you should consider two things: the function and the structure of the sentence. When we consider the functioning of sentences, we are particularly concerned with what punishment ends. When we consider the structure of sentences, we are interested in how many clauses are in the sentence. The site will explore these two concepts to help readers improve their understanding of the type of sentences. Verse Each sentence function serves one of four functions. It must either make a statement, issue an order, ask questions, or declare and be emotional or an idea. Because of this we can understand the type of sentence by analyzing the function that the sentence works. Verse Demonstration of Decline verses makes a statement. Most sentences are declarative. The calculative sentence always ends with a period. An example I like pizza. This is simple. In each of these verses the speaker makes a declaration; therefore, they are dehydrated punishment. Imperative Sentences important verses The issue of instruction. In most cases, important sentences do not have visible subjects; instead, the subject was implied. The most important sentence ends with a period, but they can also end up with an exam point. Examples Remain in your seat. When scanning the structure, we should first seek action or predicate, which remains on top of the sentence. Then, to find the subject, we ask ourselves, Who should stay? The answer is you should stay. Even if you have never expressly stated in a sentence, it is implied; therefore, in important sentences, the subject often implies you. Don't do that. Again, can we ask ourselves, Who or what shouldn't do that? The answer, of course, is you again, because the subject of important punishment will usually become implied of you. Interrogative Sentence sentences Interrogative ask questions. Because of this, all interrogative sentences end up in question marks. Example Do you want to learn? where are you going? In each case the speaker asks for information. Because of this the two sentences end in the ask mark. Sentence sentence of examination states pleasure or emotion. The authors expressed examination tones when they finished their sentences in exam points. Each examination sentence should end in an examination point. Use exam sentences with multiple times because too much pleasure can interfere with readers or listeners. Awesome Example! I'm sick of this! Notice in each case that the sentence expressed emotion. Signals an exam point to the reader that the speaker shouts or declares.
